R. B. ALEXANDER NOW LOCATED AT SMITHVILLE

In this week's issue of the Times appears the card of Mr. R. B. Alexander, who has located in Smithville for the purpose of practicing law. Mr. Alexander was born and reared in Giddings. He was dmitted to the bar at the age of 19 and was in the office of his brother, P. J. Alexander, the present County Attorney of Lee County, until the United States entered the war; at which time he offered his services to his Country and for two and one half years wore the kahki; having served in the Q. M. C. Department. In this service his experience was quite extensive in leasing and buying lands for the Government Army Posts and examining and passing on land titles. Mr. Alexander says he is glad to get back into civil life again, since the government no longer needs his service, and that he hopes the good people of Smithville will favor him with a portion of their legal business.
