NEW GRAIN CROP

August Fritsche, Lincoln, was showing some Grohoma which he grew this year on his farm. It seems to be better than darso, maize or any other grain crop grown here because it withstood the drought this year and produced heavily. The stalks are also better than the usual grain stalks because they are very nutritious and are highly productive for milk cows. He is well satisfied with the new crop and thinks he will plant it heavily instead of corn next year.
