Herman H. Froehlich
Struck by Car

Herman H. Froehlich, 68, apparently sustained only minor injuries when he was struck by a car at the Main and Austin Street intersection as he was walking across Austin Street Wednesday morning.

Mr. Froehlich was hit by a 1954 Ford driven by Sam Parker Peebles, 65, of Lexington.

Mr. Peebles explained to City Marshal Rudi Simon that he was turning from North Main onto East Austin and that he was blinded by the sun and did not see Mr. Froehlich.

Mr. Froehlich was crossing Austin Street from the First National Bank corner, saw the car approach, and stepped up onto the car's bumper, he told Marshal Simon, was knocked to the ground, got up and went to the left rear of the car. He was taken to Lee Memorial Hospital for examination.

Marshal Simon said that Mr. Froehlich was in the pedestrian cross walk when struck and that no charges have been filed.
