M. N. Peter of Cameron, manager of the Central Produce Co. of that place, was a visitor here during the holidays and the first of this week. Mr. Peter reports a very satisfactory business the first season there as he only opened for business a few months ago. While the turkey business did not amount to what it did in Lee County the past season he says no doubt another season it will as the farmers up there are now realizing it is a sure moneyed crop and many more will indulge in the produce business this year. He says Cameron is a dandy town and a fine lot of people live up there and he is very much elated in having located in such a place.
