Fine Onions.

Calvin Sanders of Blue was in town Monday marketing bushels of sweet Bermuda onions. They are splendid and show they were grown in moist soil. The day will come when the sandy soils of Lee County will come into their own as they are now doing with peanuts and melons. The taking out of production of many acres for Camp Swift area will bring many acres in Lee County into production since better roads enable the growers to dispose of their products at the farm. Many watermelons this summer are purchased on the vine by truckers who come long distances. Sandy soils may some day feed the world.
