

CONCERT: Kids in Concert. WHEN: 7 p.m. Tuesday. WHERE: Cactus Theater, 1812 Buddy Holly Ave. CONFIRMED PERFORMERS: Brittney Bennett, Jennifer Boreing, William Boreing, D'Etta Brown, Cami Caldwell, Toby Caldwell, Holly Carroll, Julie Cottrell, Sonnet Frisbee, Emily Gossett, Amy Jones, Brooke Jones, Dallas Key, Allison Lewis, Lindsay Lewis, Stephanie Long, Janee Lovelady, Jill Montgomery, Maegan Moseley, Tonya Perkins, Katy Pounds, Raquel Ramos, Amanda Schoppa, Stacy Singleton, Brennan Stravlo, Jerica Tyler, Melody Warshaw, Leslie White and Jennifer Womble. SPECIAL GUESTS: Todd Caldwell and Sheena Fadeyi. TICKETS: No admission charge. Don't let the theme of Kids in Concert fool you. After all, it was less than one year back that Plainview's Abbi Hutcherson, then just 11 years old, nabbed one of the lead roles in Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Whistle Down the Wind." Then again, it wasn't that long ago that young Sheena Fadeyi first blew audiences away on the Cactus Theater stage. The teen-age Fadeyi, by the way, will make a special guest appearance at Tuesday's Kids in Concert, probably singing, "I Will Always Love You." The other featured guest is saxophonist Todd Caldwell, expected to play the theme from the film "Arthur." Former recording artist Terri Caldwell is one of the area's more respected voice teachers and said Wednesday that this concert, which will include full lighting, will find her students singing country, gospel, 1950s hits and Broadway show tunes. Faces to watch, she added, include 13-year-old Amy Jones singing "Desperado," 15-year-old Leslie White singing "When I Fall in Love" and 11-year-old Post native Jerica Tyler performing "Piece of My Heart." Caldwell said, "Most people walk in not really knowing what to expect, and they usually leave pleased. It's really more a concert than a recital." - WILLIAM KERNS

Taken from the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal