

Saint Jo retired teacher featured on episode of Jeopardy

Saint Jo native and MSU graduate Nancy Schoppa will be competing in Monday's episode of Jeopardy.

By Samantha Forester | September 24, 2018 at 11:15 AM CDT - Updated September 25 at 9:06 AM

SAINT JO, TX (RNN Texoma) - On Monday, September 24, a retired teacher from Texoma was a contestant on the game show Jeopardy.

The Midwestern State University graduate and Saint Jo native auditioned for the show four times. She took the online test in March or April of this year.

She was then invited to an interview in mid-July and a week and a half later she was called and asked to come out to Los Angeles to film the episode.

“It was great, awesome and marvelous,” Schoppa said about her experience.

Schoppa was an educator for Bellevue ISD and Saint Jo ISD during her 32-year career. The long-time Jeopardy fan loves trivia and knowing random facts about different things.

Her episode aired on Monday at 4:30 p.m. right here on News Channel 6. Schoppa beat her other two competitors in Final Jeopardy and ended the episode with $3,600.

Copyright 2018 RNN Texoma. All rights reserved.

Accessed at <http://www.newschannel6now.com/2018/09/24/saint-jo-retired-teacher-be-featured-episode-jeopardy/>, uploaded with permission.