BLUE NEWS

(Haskell L. Ruthven, Reporter)

Blue, Lee County,

January 3.

New Year again. How many people have made resolutions? My motto for the New Year is: Cooperate, use more thinking power and make this a most profitable year. If Lee County is to rise in the agricultural world, we must put new ideas into our heads, think together, work together and raise more things toward living at home. We hear of many farmers about Blue talking farming in a business way, why not cooperate and quit planting just one certain thing, and see for ourselves what a different kind of a start we can make? Let's put on our table during 1931 the old-fashioned home-grown living.

The tomato situation at present is looking good. There were several hot beds made last week, and planted. The number of acres will be largely increased over that of last year's crop. We are in the hope that this business will increase, for we can grow standard products the Northern market.
