FEDOR WALTHER LEAGUE

The Fedor Walther League enjoyed a hike at the Peat Bog Sunday. The group assembled at about 2 o'clock, and after taking several snap-shots and an extra swallow of the good spring-water, started on a short hike. Bravely the group followed their leaders through thick and thin — mostly thick, because of the thick youpon bushes, swamps, and precarious bridges. Everyone managed to reach the picnic area, however, where they rested under the shady oaks. It took only several moments of the wandering minds (excluding those of couples, to think of that all-important factor in our lives, food. A lunch of cake, cookies, sandwiches, and iced tea was served to the group.

Many pictures were taken while on the hike, and also before and after lunch. While the group was congregating on a bridge for a group picture, a loud crack was heard, and the bridge collapsed. The photographer was aware of the fact, and took a picture which will undoubtedly show some unique facial expressions.

The group, which consisted of about 35 Leaguers, enjoyed themselves immensely, and asked for more of this type of entertainment.
