Masonic Social

Members of the Giddings Eastern Star and Masonic lodges met in a joint social Monday evening at the Masonic hall. W. O. Bowers, Jr., was in charge of the program and made an address stressing the fraternal features of the organizations. Ex-Judge John H. Tate read an interesting and instructive paper on Masonry and some of its practices. Short talks were made by Mrs. J. M. Johnson, and Rev. Burr. Refreshments were served until each one said "enough." The evening was spent in a general fellowship gathering, and doubtless redounded to the good of the orders in Giddings.
