

Grassyville News

Special Correspondence to the News

Everyone in this neighborhood seemed to spend Thanksgiving day in the proper spirit.

There were services at the Grassyville Methodist Church in the forenoon, and the new pastor and his good wife gave a social to all the church members and their friends in the evening.

Brother and Sister Vetter certainly know how to treat people royally and how to entertain the young people. When the company broke up, each went home with a song in the heart and a warm feeling for the new pastor and his wife.

There was an interesting wedding in the neighborhood the eve before Thanksgiving when Mr. Bennie Peschke was married to Miss Lillie Johle. They will be at home soon, to their friends, in their pretty new bungalow a couple of miles northwest of Grassyville.

There's another beautiful bungalow being built a few miles further on nearer to Paige. Don't tell anyone, but more wedding bells may ring soon.

In spite of the continued warm weather a few farmers have killed hogs and the many lengths of sausage hanging in the smokehouses testify to the fact.

Farmers are anxiously awaiting a good rain before beginning to plow.

Those who are changing places on the farms for rent are taking advantage of the dry weather by getting moved and settled before the Christmas holidays.

Several of the farmer's wives have held their turkeys for the advance price which usually comes just before Christmas.