

The Giddings News

June 29, 1923

Grassyville News

The farmers of this section are forging ahead with their farm work trying to do their part toward insuring a good harvest of every thing which they are trying to grow.

A rain just now would increase the prospect for a better yield of corn, and might help the cotton and other crops, although the cotton is not suffering.

Our people have been feasting on different kinds of vegetables, and are now enjoying eating tomatoes, roasting ears, and melons--Yum, Yum.

There are a few peaches and plums ripening now too, and there's promise of a few pears in the fall.

The berry crop was for some unaccountable reason cut short, after a showing of an immense number of blooms.

The housewives are busy canning, and looking after a goodly number of young chickens and turkeys, the sale of which will substantially increase the proceeds from many farms.

The whole community is busy, very busy getting ready for the Community Fair and Barbecue which will be held on Wednesday July 11th at Grassyville school house.

Every body in reach should attend this fair and barbecue, as there will be many interesting features. For instance, there will be a table of relics, some of which were made 100 or more years ago, and other relics of Civil War times, etc.

Then there will be a chance for anyone to participate in old time games, etc.

If anyone wants to know what else will be there to interest and amuse, just tell that one to come and see.

Look out for the big advertisement and for the dodgers!

The people here are too busy to visit.

Correspondent.