

The Giddings News

September 7, 1923

Grassyville Notes

The farmers and their families of this section are busily engaged gathering the cotton crop which in spite of the drought will make a much better showing than was at first expected.

The showers of rain of the past week have given hopes of a fall garden and most everyone has planted Irish potatoes and sown turnips.

The health of the community is quite good now with the exception of some malaria.

The Grassyville Methodist church and Sunday school are still flourishing, and Rev. A. R. Vetter is doing much toward keeping his congregation progressing toward higher experiences in the Christian faith.

The Lutheran congregation is also doing good work, aided by their energetic pastor and teacher, Rev. Richard Kloen.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Bright have just returned from a visit of a month's duration in different parts of Tennessee and Arkansas where they were the guests of relatives.

They report Tennessee and Arkansas to be keeping up with modern progress in every way; but declare a preference for the fine Lone Star State as a pleasant dwelling place both summer and winter.

Correspondent.