

The Giddings News

July 4, 1924

At Weimar an auto tank exploded, causing two to die and two to become injured. One was found burned to death while the other one died from the burns. The car was set afire by striking the guard rail on a curve on a highway, causing the gasoline tank to explode.

Another wreck took place near Hutto when a boy whose home was in Elgin was fatally injured when their car was crushed by another auto driven at high speed. One boy's skull was fractured, from which he died three hours later. Two other boys were injured.