

The Giddings Star

October 13, 1955

MRS. ANNIE TSCHATSCHULA

Safety Pin Swallowed

The Herzog's 10 month old son, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Becker swallowed a small safety pin which had accidentally been dropped and when it lodged in the throat he began choking. Mrs. Becker could feel the pin but could not reach it, so it was taken to Giddings doctors, who in turn advised then to Austin where it was removed with no ill after affects—it was an open pin.

Cuts Blood Vessels

S. H. Malke cut several blood vessels on his left hand Tuesday while chopping up some green corn for feed for his cattle which required a hurried trip to the doctor and several trips during the week, plus a few painful days.
