

STORM TANGLES UP TANGLEWOOD

Pictures above show how last Wednesday's tornado ripped up the town of Tanglewood. The top picture shows the First Baptist Church. A couple of members look over the wreckage where furniture was stored belonging to the Rev. James Hosea, the new minister who had come in the night before. Most of the furniture was carried away by the storm, adding to the problems of the minister who is faced with building a new church, before he can preach his first sermon. The picture below gives you an idea how the town hall looked after the tornado had blown over. The big timbers were ripped from the structure and stacked along the path of the twister like kindling wood. — A number of residences were either demolished or badly damaged. A number of persons were injured, but fortunately no life was lost in the trnado.
