

The Giddings News

June 26, 1931

Edwin Blatt is at home for the present, since his graduation in electrical engineering. He says a trip through some of the larger plants up north discloses the revolution of automatic machines in generating stations and such. One man is there looking after repairs, while all switching on and off is automatic, thus displacing many men.