Fire Alarm

The fire alarm sounded twice this week, the first alarm was Tuesday when a carload of cotton seed hulls was discovered burning while the train was moving out of town. The train was backed to town and the blaze was promptly extinguished. The second alarm was at six o'clock Wednesday afternoon when the dwelling occupied by Ben Bloberstein in South Giddings burned completely down. The blaze was first discovered upstairs near the kitchen flue, the building was slow in burning. Neighbors and the fire boys rushed to the place and saved many articles of furniture and household goods. Ben is a member of the fire department and he saw his house on fire as he was going home from his work.
